“ Renier knew more about what I needed, than I did.”

Renier is probably the best in the business in the Midwest, especially based on the number of jobs they have done in the automotive industry.

I didn't bid out the project - Renier did. The design-build process kept them on budget and within parameters, and it was easier to work through the whole process because of it. And very rarely do they issue change orders.

They kept the job site clean, were meticulous and hands on, and were there everyday.

Renier takes personal pride in their work. ”
