COLUMBUS, Ohio – November 27, 2012 – William Heifner, president of Renier Construction announced today the promotion of Neal Bronder to project executive. Bronder joined Renier in 1989 and has worked over thirty years in the construction industry. He was most recently a senior project manager at Renier Construction. As project executive, he will utilize his vast experience in commercial, industrial and multi-family construction to serve clients in the Midwest.

“Neal is deeply valued by our clients and we couldn’t be more delighted for him to take this next step at Renier. His working knowledge is extraordinary and our architects and engineers have always appreciated his ability to complete the most challenging projects,” stated Heifner.

Bronder has worked as a foreman, superintendent, estimator, and project manager on projects in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, Missouri, Indiana, and Arizona. Bronder comes from a long line of ancestors in the construction industry; Bronder’s father, grandfather, and great grandfather were all involved in the construction and building industry.
