

Integrity

Being new to the Columbus market I wasn't sure which way to go. I ultimately went with Renier based on their experience, who they've built for, and their wonderful reputation.

Truly, there would be no one else I would ask to build my dealerships than Renier Construction.

From the project manager on-site to their executive staff, I mean, absolutely the best. They are extremely organized and provide great communication. When they shared weekly updates and photos, I would share that with Kia - Kia mentioned the amount of detail, communication, and information they were getting was great.

Renier showed that they had wonderful control by forecasting and ordering things in advance to avoid any potential delays.

It's been a great building experience. I'm looking at possibly building another dealership and the first team I'm going to call is Renier.
